About the Family Services Review Committee (FSRC)

The FSRC was convened in June 2024 to review how family services should evolve to meet families' changing and increasingly complex needs. Co-chaired by Senior Parliamentary Secretary for Social and Family Development Mr Eric Chua and Singapore University of Social Sciences President Professor Tan Tai Yong, the Committee brings together senior leaders from Government agencies, the social service sector and academia.

The Committee was tasked to identify the future needs of families and social service agencies, design a future-ready family services model, and recommend the capabilities, systems and other enablers needed to support the transformation. The recommendations were shaped in partnership with the sector through consultation and co-creation, including all 26 Social Service Agencies running programmes within the scope of OFS, as well as sector leaders and social service professionals.

Refer to Annex A of the Family Services Review Committee Report 2026 for the composition of the FSRC and its working groups.
